Therms = measured hours of use x actual capacity of your heating unit 1 therm = 100,000 BTU
A furnace with nameplate capacity of 80,000 BTU/H input, is equal to 0.8 therms per hour
A boiler system heating unit capacity varies with boiler water temperature, which is measured for your heater whenever your heat is on, and used to calculate average capacity of your heater during the billing period.

Billing $ = Therms used x Gas billing rate per therm from the gas utility for the most recent billing period
